Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In particular it is indefinite and the examiner did not understand:

“storage means does not store information about purchases so far by said customer”

It is unclear to the examiner and one of ordinary skill in the art what is claim by this description. “A storage means that do not store information?” For the purposes of this review the examiner will interpret the claim to be:

“smartcard contains a storage device”

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The Examiner has read and reviewed all of the information provided by the Applicant. The examiner withdraws the rejection of claims 1-10 under 35 USC 102.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The Examiner has read and reviewed all of the information provided by the Applicant. The examiner rejects as final claims 1-5 & 8-13 under 35 USC 103.

The Applicant attention is re-drawn to the following:

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5 & 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Samra US Patent 6,970,830. in view of Official Notice.

Re claim 1 & 5 & 8: Samra discloses:

A customer relationship management system(see Samra, abstract) where:

System analyzes customer's buying habits (Samra, abstract, "analyzing the success of a marketing campaign" it is inherent that this would be customer buying habits for a particular group of products)

Determine a customer rank from purchase data (Samra, paragraph 11, "customers are rank ordered")

Database receives information about usage (Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database)

Calculates a value representing customer's buying habits (Samra, paragraph 11, "Net Present Value")

Analyses results (Samra, Figure 2, item 22)

Sends calculation results (Samra, Figure 2, item 34)

Although Samra does not have smartcard the examiner claims official notice that it is well know to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention that a smart card is a type of database

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add smartcard as taught in official notice to Samra.

It is clear that one would be motivated because convenience of smart card technology.

Re claim 2: Samra discloses:

Capability to present a service content according to a value of buying habit calculated (Samra, Figure 2, item 32)

Re claim 3 & 9: Samra discloses:

Uses type of information such as number of usage, a purchase amount, usage data/time, usage category (Samra, Paragraph 29)

Re claim 4 & 10: Samra discloses:

Storage means stores values of customer buying habits (Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database)

Database calculates the customer's latest buying habits based on information about purchases (Samra, Figure 2, item 32)

Re claim 11: Samra discloses:

Database calculates a value of customers latest buying habits from a time difference between a previous purchase and the more recent purchase. (Samra, paragraph 11)

Re claim 12: Samra discloses:

Database contains a storage device (Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database)

Re claim 13: Samra discloses:

Database receives information (Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database)

Calculations value of customer buying habits (Samra, paragraph 11, "Net Present Value")

Sends calculated value (Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database)

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 11/13/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In particular, and respect to Claim 1 the Applicant argued 1st: "There is no teaching or suggestion in Samra of the customer relationship management system as recited in claim 1 of the present invention."

The Examiner refutes the argument made by the Applicant and draws the attention to Figure 2. It is clear that this system has all the components to collect analysis and compute the customer information as proposed in the inventors relationship management system.

Applicants argued 2nd, "Samra does not disclose the use of a smart card to perform the processing in the claimed customer relationship management system."

The Examiner refutes the argument made by the Applicant and draws the attention to Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database. The examiner sites official notice that it is well know to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention that a smart card is a type of database.

Applicants argued 3rd, "Samra does not disclose where the smart card calculates a first value that represents the customers' latest buying habits."

The Examiner refutes the argument made by the Applicant and draws the attention to Samra, paragraph 11. More specifically Samra states "model" are used with "scores" of "relevant customer metrics." Clearly buying habits is a relevant customer metric.

Applicants argued 4th, "The use of two smart cards is not found in Samra"

The Examiner refutes the argument made by the Applicant and draws the attention to Samra, Figure 2, item 30, database. The examiner sites official notice that it is well know to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention that a smart card is a type of database.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
